Thank you for sharing with us your knowledge and experience of the computer world. Your speech was informative, articulate and delightful and from the start you commanded a captivated audience.

I'm also pleased that you held still long enough to accept the Agency Medallion. It is indeed a recognition of your contribution to our training program and also our gratitude for your willingness to spend the time with us.

The Agency is still abuzz from your talk--obviously one of our more memorial events.

Thank you again for crowding us into your so very busy schedule and we look forward to the opportunity of tapping your wisdom again.

With my best wishes and regards.

Sincerely,

John N. McMahon

I would be very pleased if you could be our guest speaker here at CIA Headquarters. I would suggest either 15 May or 12 June 1984 but would be happy to accommodate your schedule if neither date is convenient. Our program normally consists of a lecture of approximately 30 to 40 minutes, followed by a 20 to 30 minute question period. Lectures are usually scheduled from 1500-1615 hours. Your thoughts about "Computer Resources: Possible Future Choices," or any related topic of your choice, would be of keen interest to our audience.

I hope you are able to accept this invitation. [redacted] [redacted] will be pleased to discuss any aspects of the arrangements with you. She can be reached on [redacted]
